APRIL Facts

April comes from the Latin word, aperio, “to open” (bud), because plants begin to grow during this month.
Stone = Diamond Flower = Daisy

THE MASTERS GOLF TOURNAMENT

When “The Masters” was created, the other golf tournaments that existed:

- (1) The U.S. Open
- (2) The PGA (Professional Golfer’s Association)

had never played in the southern United States or what is termed “the deep South.” So, in 1934, Bobby Jones, a famous golfer who had come from the South and who had also designed the golf course for the prominent and exclusive Augusta National Golf Club, decided to start a golf tournament in Georgia. This is why The Masters is held the first week of April every year in Augusta, Georgia.

Bobby Jones started this with his best friend, Clifford Roberts who was also the chairman of the Augusta National. He oversaw everything of the tournament for 43 years.

Bobby Jones was so identified with “The Masters” that people flocked just to see him for many years, until he gave up as a competitor himself. But, Bobby is the one who is given credit for setting the standards for the behavior standards of the spectators, that are still printed in the spectator’s guides today. He also is the one who set the precedent for conducting the now traditional interview with the new winner before presenting him with his Green Jacket.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower (1953-1961), often vacationed in Augusta and played golf at their prestigious golf course. However, when he first played golf at the Augusta National Golf Club it was in 1948 and he wasn’t even president yet. However, even after becoming the president, he went back there frequently on his vacations, now drawing a crowd. Up until this time, golf had been consider a sport for the elite. But President Eisenhower now made it a sport for the common people.

When thinking of the word “golfer” up until the most recent times with Tiger Woods, the most common name in golf was Arnold Palmer. Mr. Palmer really gave The Masters major publicity with his playing. Then came Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player. Soon, Palmer, Nicklaus and Player were considered the “Big 3” in golf. From 1943 to 1958, the “Big 3” won 8 of those 9 years. Arnold Palmer won the first Masters Tournament. This decade was considered “the golden age of golf” for many fans.

How You Get To Play in The Masters?

First you have to qualify (much like the Olympics). Qualifying rounds are held on Thursday and Friday (of this 4-day event.) The top 44 finishers (don’t ask me how they got that number!) then go on to the final round. Then the top 24 are automatically invited back next year and do not have to requalify.

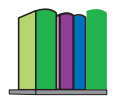

The Green Jacket

The Green Jacket represents the green of well-kept grass. Over 300 members of the Augusta National Golf Club (who come from all over America) wear blazers of this intense green color. The jackets are NEVER to be removed from the club and are kept there at all times. Not all members work on The Masters tournament. But those that do are known as “The Green Jackets.” And just because you have a green jacket doesn’t always mean you are a superior golfer. They are just people who love the game of golf and are dedicated to it.

When you win The Masters tournament you get a green jacket also to symbolize your victory. It is also a visual symbol that you are now accepted into the golf elite of the world. The winner is allowed to take his Green Jacket home with him for 12 months, until the next tournament the following year. After that, it’s kept in the club.
